Will Ask Candidate Taft's Withdrawal EXTRAORDINARY POLITICAL MOVE IS NOW CONTEMPLATED

Federal Office Holders to Circulate Petitions

Officeholders Prepare to Circulate Petitions.

CONGRESSMEN ON THE LIST

Movement Gains Headway Roosevelt Will Also Be Asked to Clear Tracks for Nomination of Candidate Acceptable to Both Factions of Party—National Committee Fails to Pick Campaign Manager—Cleveland Man Will Humiliate Taft.

Washington, July 9. — Republican officeholders who feel that they are handicapped by the breach existing in the party, are back of a nationwide movement to petition President Taft to withdraw as the Republican presidential candidate. These men include members of congress, members of state legislatures which will elect senators, state and county officeholders and party candidates. If the movement to petition Mr. Taft to withdraw succeeds in gaining any volume it is said these same men, in the interest of party harmony, may ask Colonel Roosevelt also to withdraw as a prospective candidate for an independent nomination and permit a compromise selection of some man agreeable to both factions of the party. It is the desire of the promoters of the scheme that a decision shall be reached before Aug. 5, when the Roosevelt faction plans to hold a convention in Chicago.

The circulation of petitions, it was declared, would start within a week. The organizers are now circulating blank forms of petitions and appointing supervisors, who in turn will engage canvassers to solicit the signatures of Republican voters. The authors of the plan expect to offer practically every Republican voter in the United States a chance to express his opinion of Mr. Taft's candidacy either by signing the petition or rejecting it.

FAIL TO AGREE

Republicans Have Time to Select Campaign Manager.

Washington, July 9.—Without having made any selection for chairman of the national committee, the subcommittee of nine of the Republican national committee took an adjournment.

As a result of the day's conference the rift has been decidedly toward Charles D. Hilles, the president's private secretary, and the impression was that the choice lies between Mr. Hilles and Harry M. Daugherty, who has been prominent in Ohio politics for several years.

HENRY P. PLETCHER

U. S. Minister to Chile
Now Home on Leave.

William Barnes, Jr., who had been favorably considered for the place, has practically been eliminated. The national committeemen were almost unanimous in the opinion that Mr. Barnes is the best equipped man for the place, but the fear was expressed that his selection would lead to the immediate lugging of the Barnes issue into the Taft campaign.

The members of the subcommittee, who were instructed by the national committee to confer with the president in regard to the permanent organization of the latter committee, found Mr. Taft's mind absolutely open on the chairmanship. This was disappointing to some members of the committee.

Swap Opinions.

The president insisted on having the views of the committeemen and on giving his own opinions in regard to several candidates. The result was that the committeemen ended their day's labors without any candidate bearing the Taft tag.

The president, now that he has obtained a full expression of views from the committeemen, will indicate his choice more definitely today.

A movement was started to get Representative Mann of Illinois to take the place, but Mr. Mann would not consent to the use of his name.

The most notable thing about the chairmanship situation is that five or six candidates really want the job. Mr. Barnes of New York would like to have it. So also would Mr. Daugherty of Ohio. This fact was taken to indicate that the political wisecracks believe that Taft at least has a good fighting chance.

DROPS FROM TAFT COLUMN

Electoral Candidate Meek Says He Will Support Roosevelt.

Toledo, O., July 9.—"I saw enough in Chicago to convince me that the renomination of President Taft was not obtained honestly."

Giving this as his reason, F. E. Meek of Wauseon, Ninth district Republican nominee for presidential elector, declared that if chosen a member of the electoral college he will cast his vote for Colonel Roosevelt and not for Taft. Mr. Meek is the second Republican candidate for member of the electoral college in this state to repudiate Taft publicly, and takes the position that, notwithstanding the nomination of Taft in the national convention, he can vote for Roosevelt in the electoral college without violation of any pledge, and that he will be representing the sentiment of a majority of the voters of this district by doing so.

Conger Refuses to Serve.

Cleveland, O., July 9.—J. W. Conger, Ohio's representative to notify President Taft of his renomination, will not notify. The president will suffer the humiliation of receiving his official notification Aug. 1 with no regularly accredited notifier present from his home state.

I.O.O.F. In Session

Youngstown, O., July 9.—The seventy-third annual session of the Patriarchs Militant, I. O. O. F., began here with delegates present from all parts of the state. Considerable business was transacted preceding the grand encampment, which opened today. The officials elected and installed by the Patriarchs Militant are as follows: General commander, A. R. Stocker, Miamisburg; major general, Perry D. Knap, Toledo; vice president, R. F. Potts, Cleveland; secretary, Fred H. A. Hahn, Toledo; treasurer, Frank C. Garrett, Dayton; chaplain, Ensign Myers; sentinel, M. L. Muma, Fostoria; officer of the day, W. L. Ryan, Dayton.

Name Kunkle For Judge.

Dayton, O., July 9.—Albert H. Kunkle of Springfield was nominated for circuit judge by the Republicans of the Second judicial circuit, in convention here. David F. Pugh of Columbus and Judge C. W. Dustin of Dayton, present incumbents, were other candidates.

Wives of Opposing Political Leaders at Baltimore Convention

AMONG the most keenly interested spectators of the proceedings of the Democratic national convention were the wives and daughters of men prominent in the political life of the nation. Miss Genevieve Clark, the seventeen-year-old daughter of the speaker, had the time of her young life in watching the varying fortunes of her father's candidacy. Mrs. Taft came up from Washington and sat in the box reserved for Norman E. Mack, chairman of the Democratic national committee. Chairman Ollie James' remark, "Theodore Roosevelt says Mr. Taft is a friend of the trusts, and Mr. Taft says Theodore Roosevelt is a friend of the trusts, and I believe both told the truth," seemed particularly to amuse her, and she led the applause of her little party at the close of the permanent chairman's speech. Mrs. Mack, wife of the national chairman, in the same box, was also an attentive observer of the lively doings among the excited delegates. Mrs. Taft is seen at the right in the photograph, Mrs. Mack at the left.

B'BLACK HAND FOUND GUILTY

RECEIVE LONG PRISON TERMS

Leaders Get Thirty Years Each and Other Members Various Degrees of Punishment—One Prisoner Attempts Suicide by Severing Artery in Neck With Piece of Glass—Pandemonium Reigns When President of Court Reports Findings.

Viterbo, Italy, July 9.—In varying degrees the Camorristi who have been on trial for nearly two years on the charge of murdering Gennaro Cuocolo and his wife in June, 1906, were found guilty.

The verdict says Corrado Sortino, guilty of both murders; Nicola Morra, Antonio Cerrato and Mariano di Gennaro guilty of the murder of Cuocolo, and Giuseppe Saivi guilty of the murder of Cuocolo's wife. Enrico Alfano, the alleged leader of the Camorristi; Giovanni Rapi, Di Marinas and the others are convicted of being instigators of the crime and members of a criminal organization.

The president of the court immediately sentenced the condemned men. Sortino, Morra, Salvi, Morra, Di Gennaro, Alfano, Rapi and Di Marinas were sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment and to 10 years' police surveillance each; Di Mattio to 10 years and six months' imprisonment and 10 years' surveillance; Ascritore to 10 years' imprisonment and three years' surveillance; Vitozzi, the priest, seven years' imprisonment and two years' surveillance; the others to five years' imprisonment and three years' surveillance.

When the accused men were placed in the iron cage to hear the verdict,

Di Marinas suddenly drew forth a piece of glass and cut his throat. He fell to the floor in a pool of blood and general pandemonium broke loose. The other prisoners screamed like wild animals, shouting invectives and imprecations.

Rapi shouted: "This innocent blood is crying for revenge."

Rages Around Cage.

Alfano raged around and recalled his brother's death, who, he cried, was a "victim of injustice and a man who had suffered the martyrdom of innocence."

Vitozzi knelt, weeping and praying. All the prisoners acted like maniacs, and the carabinieri had difficulty in forcing their way into the cage to maintain order and carry out the wounded Di Marinas.

The pronouncement of sentence was received with uproarious protests from the condemned men. One of them shouted: "We are innocent. This is legal assassination."

Some of them shook their fists at the judge and others tore at the bars of the cage. They attempted in concert to harangue those assembled in the court.

In addition to the police and carabinieri within the building, a battalion of troops with fixed bayonets was drawn up outside. It was feared that some attempt might be made to rescue the prisoners.

Di Marinas is in a serious condition. The glass with which he attempted suicide severed an artery, which was tied, but Di Marinas, the moment he was left alone, tore off the bandages and reopened the wound. Surgeons again dressed his injuries, but the wounded man declared that he was determined to die. The verdict as a whole proved somewhat of a surprise and all agreed that the severity of the sentences is the last blow to the Camorra, which has practically been annihilated since the arrest of its leaders.

OLIVE BRANCH WAS REFUSED FIGHT NOW ON

WILLIAM F. M'COMBS

Personal Choice of Wilson For Campaign Manager.

THEY'RE AFTER FEDERAL JUDGE ARCHIBALD

Impeachment Proceedings Recommended by House Committee.

Washington, July 9. — Formal demand that Judge Robert W. Archibald of the United States commerce court be impeached for "misbehavior and high crimes and misdemeanors," was made to the house of representatives by the judiciary committee. In exonerating phrases the committee declared Archibald's "sense of moral responsibility had become deadened" and that he "had prostituted his high office for personal profit."

Thirteen articles of impeachment were presented in the resolution. The judiciary committee's report on the investigation of the commerce court judge filed supplementary to the formal demands, bristled with bitter denunciation of Archibald. "The testimony in the whole case," the report says, "tends to support the general specification of general misbehavior."

"The testimony shows that at different times while Judge Archibald was a judge of the United States district court he sought and obtained credit and in other instances sought to obtain credit from persons who had litigation pending in his court," the report says.

Plague Situation Unchanged.

Washington, July 9.—No additional cases of plague have been discovered in Havana, the state department was informed. The number of cases remains at one, that of a Spaniard in the Las Animas hospital. One more death was reported from San Juan, Porto Rico. This makes a total of 20 deaths from the plague there.

Progressive Democrats to Ignore Conservative Element.

CHICAGO GETS HEADQUARTERS

Branches Will Be Established in Various Other Cities to Facilitate Work of Campaign—Leaders Call at Sea Girt and Consult Woodrow Wilson About Selection of Campaign Manager, but No Definite Agreement Is Reached.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 9.—In a gathering of Democratic politicians at the little White House, it was made plain that this is to be a campaign run by the progressive wing of the Democratic party, headed by a progressive chairman, managed by progressive committeemen, and there will be no olive branching, no concessions, no placating of any conservative elements in the party at any stage of the game. The progressive fight is to be carried on in every state in the Union.

The national headquarters is to be in Chicago, and not only will there be an eastern branch headquarters in New York city, but another in Denver or San Francisco. There will be no more effort made to attract the support of progressive Republicans than conservative Democrats.

Gore Clarifies Situation.

United States Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma, who arrived just about the time the Jersey men had put in an appearance, seemed to have been able to clarify the situation. Senator Gore had a two hours' talk with the governor and he made no concealment of his gratification after the interview was over. The senator sounded the progressive keynote, and it may be added that he will play a big part in the fight. He said that the party needed a man like McCombs or A. Mitchell Palmer for national chairman, and whoever the man is to be, he must be a man of the "new type."

"I think," he said, "the Republicans are split up. The Democratic party is a unit, battling as one man, under Wilson's leadership, for real Democracy—real democracy, understand that."

"We have a chieftain who simply embodies the real spirit of progress. I can not say too often—I want this to go down—that Governor Wilson is wise enough to know that 'too swift arrives as tardy as too slow.'"

"A considerable number of the progressive Republicans will support Wilson. The Democrats are organizing and conducting a vigorous, thorough-going campaign."

After the senator had departed Governor Wilson said that he and the senator had conferred pretty well over the entire field, discussing a great many things of interest.

Taggart Quits Committee.

Washington, July 9.—Thomas Taggart of Indiana has resigned his place on the Democratic national committee, to take place on July 14. Mr. Taggart insists that his only purpose in quitting the national committee was to get out of politics. He said he is perfectly satisfied with Wilson's nomination.

Three Fatally Injured.

Cleveland, O., July 9.—An automobile carrying eight passengers was struck by a Lake Shore freight train at a railroad crossing and seven were injured, three fatally. The automobile was owned and driven by William F. Billenstein, president and manager of the National Iron and Wire company. He and Mrs. Billenstein and Mrs. Edward W. Johnson were fatally injured.

TIME TO ACT.

Never, perhaps, since the agitation which resulted in building the present turnpikes throughout Ohio began, has there been so much said and written and so much work done too, with reference to better roads, as at the present time.

There are a number of good reasons for the present agitation or good roads movement as it is called.

Everywhere, every day people are realizing that good roads and good streets are a necessity and not a luxury, which can be dispensed with.

The activity for better roads and streets is not due entirely to the fact that the present thoroughfares are wearing out. While that is the fact yet the existence of that other fact that the present day vehicles, both those designed for pleasure and those designed for the work of transportation of merchandise and produce require better roads. The residents of the municipality have come to learn that the country roads are as necessary to their prosperity as they are to the prosperity of the residents of the rural districts and that even as to them the good roads are beneficial in a commercial way in all seasons of the year.

The idea that country roads were only of benefit to the people of the cities and towns in that they could be used for pleasure, has been discarded and now in cities and towns as well as in the rural districts throughout almost every section the good roads movement is on in earnest with a practically unanimous public sentiment favoring it and pushing the good work along.

It is now a generally recognized fact that the man who brings a load of produce from the farm into the city must figure the cost of transportation in accordance with the poorest stretch of road over which he has to travel. He cannot pull any load the entire distance of his journey if it be greater in tonnage than will permit of transportation over the most undesirable bit of roadway.

This is equally true of the man in the city who needs to go into the country with wares to sell and there are many such.

In the first instance the people in the cities and towns must pay to the farmer the extra costs thus incurred and in the latter it is the same old shoe but on the other foot.

Looking at the proposition from the purely selfish standpoint of dollars and dimes, almost any reasonable proposition which has for its object securing better highways should be supported and that is the view people almost without exception are taking of the matter.

What is true of the highways in the rural districts is true also of the streets of the cities and it is high time that the agitation in both country and city be crystallized into form and substance and theorizing and word spilling be traded for something more tangible.

Talk is good enough in its place and time, but the time has now come for action.

MAKE START

Prudent Man
Begins With
Savings Bank

By JOHN M. OSKISON

FOR the average man, as the Business Almanac points out, all investment starts with the savings bank. A few men make money suddenly or inherit a considerable amount and become sudden investors. The rule is that a man must be a saver of money for a considerable time before he becomes a buyer of securities. So the first and most vital question is, "What shall I do with my small savings?"

There are more than forty forms of co-operative, mutual benefit, savings and other similar associations in the United States. They are organized to take care of savings in any amount from the smallest to the greatest sums. Many of them are excellently managed, honest in intent and are worthy of encouragement. Some are properly looked upon with suspicion.

Most generally used, of course, are the savings banks. They have been tried by fire. Speaking generally, they are the most secure financial institutions we have. Our states have wisely regulated their operations—most of them have. Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York have done best. Ohio has a good law. Less protection for the savings bank depositor is offered in the south and west than is judged wise to furnish in the east. Here are some of the prohibitions the New York law puts upon its savings institutions:

They cannot loan money on notes, drafts, bills of exchange or any personal securities whatever.

They cannot buy stocks.

They cannot buy bonds or other forms of security issued by any industrial, manufacturing or street railway company.

They cannot buy or loan money on farm lands nor on mortgages outside of New York state.

They cannot buy bonds which are not, at least in part, first mortgages on the property bonded.

They cannot buy real estate bonds or mortgages until after a committee of the bank's trustees makes a thorough examination of the property on which the bonds or mortgages are to be placed.

All of these restrictions are salutary. They indicate some of the safeguards a prudent man ought to throw around his savings and also the tests he ought to make of his investment selections.

Report Shows Railway Returns Are Diminishing

Confidence in the ability of a railway company properly to continue its operations and adequately to maintain and extend its facilities depends in greatest measure upon its net operating revenue. This is what is left of the receipts from traffic constituting the total operating revenue, after the operating expenses have been met. As the mileage of the railways tends to increase year by year, an accurate measure is obtained of the operating revenues, operating expenses, and net operating revenue by ascertaining what they have amounted to for each mile. It may be, for example, as was the case in March, that while in the aggregate net operating revenue has increased, it has decreased when measured per mile of line.

Monthly summaries of the revenues and expenses of the steam railways of the United States have been compiled by the Bureau of Railway Economics from the reports filed month by month by the railways with the Interstate Commerce Commission, for the twenty-two months from July, 1910 to April, 1912, the last month for which returns are available. Net operating revenue per mile of line for the railways as a whole in comparison with the corresponding months of the previous year decreased in eighteen of these months, and increased in but four. The decrease per mile of line per month was as great in amount as $53, and as great in ratio as 15 per cent. The greatest increase for any one of the four months showing increases was $31, or 14.1 per cent. This was in February, 1912, and was exceptional as this month contained one more day than February, 1911. The highest average net operating revenue per mile of line for any one month of this period was $409, the lowest $203.

Seven of the ten months from July 1911 to April, 1912, show decreases in net operating revenue per mile of line as compared with the corresponding months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911; and eleven of the months of the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1911, showed decreases in comparison with the respective corresponding months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910. It is therefore evident that the trend of railway net revenue has been downward for the past two years.

The summary for April, 1912, shows that net operating revenue was less than for April, 1911, by $6,026,440, equivalent per mile of line to $33, or 11.4 per cent. This net operating revenue, which in the aggregate amounted to $56,362,945, averaged $8.57 for each mile of line for each day in April, less by $1.11 than each day of April of last year. This is the gross income per mile of line per day before anything has been taken out for taxes, rentals, interest on bonds, appropriations for betterments or dividends. Taxes for April amounted to $44 per mile of line, an increase of 9.4 per cent.

Poetry—Today

THE NATURE LOVER'S PLAINT.

I am a Nature Lover, and my disposition's kind;

But I wish I knew the working of the quadruped mind.

Now, if I met a tiger, could I make him understand

That my motives are benignant and my attitude is bland?

Could I convince a grizzly bear that I have no intent

Of aught save pleasant courtesy, and civil is my bent?

That deeds of an unfriendly drift I never think about?

Could I make any big grey wolf implicitly believe

That if he deem me offish I shall deeply, truly grieve?

That not a single hostile thought within my bosom is,

That all my wishes and desires are right in line with his?

Because, unless I feel that I can dominate his thought,

And make him view my conduct just exactly as he ought,

I think I'd rather not go out to meet a wild beast where

His foot is on his native heath and near by is his lair.

—Carolyn Wells, in Harper's Magazine.

PERCENTAGE TO THE GOOD

Statement, However, Not Altogether Reassuring to the Owner of a Heavy Car.

The lightning was flashing and the thunder was crashing, and along with them were rain, hail, and a wind that threatened fairly to blow off the top of the universe. Hackley urged the car forward at a terrific pace, seeking shelter, and at last, as he rounded a turn in the road the welcome sign, Garage, was to be seen a hundred yards ahead. He stopped in front of it, and the long, lank countryman in charge swung open the doors.

"Gee!" said Hackley, dubiously, as he looked inside and took in the sad fact that this, like many other so-called garages, was nothing but an old-time barn, transformed into its present glory by a coat of paint and a swinging sign. "How about that floor of yours, mister?"

Silver Fizzed Tongue.

It was a matter of comment at a recent banquet in Savannah, says the Chicago Post, that the Chatham artillery punch was missing. There was some alarm over this until it was established that the recipe had not really gone the way of the secrets concerning Tyrian purple and Damascus steel.

Artillery punch is a solid punch. Its velled wallop is like that of a boxing glove with a brick in it.

Col. A. C. Dawes, who was presiding at a dinner following the installation of a lodge of Elks, had a bowl of it brewed without consulting the company. He had told two or three prominent novitiates that he was going to call upon them after dinner, and they had implored him to pass them by; their timidity was extreme and their command of language school-boyish. Would the colonel please ignore them? He would.

The dinner progressed and the punch came on at its conclusion. After two rounds had passed one of the after-dinner amateurs slipped around to the toastmaster's chair and whispered in his ear:

"Dawes, why don't you ask me to speak?"

The First Cable.

The laying down of the first intercontinental cable was begun in 1857. The vessels, two American and two British, laid 300 miles of the cable, when it snapped, and the attempt was put off until 1866. In August of that year the junction between the two continents was completed by the laying down of 2,050 miles of cable from Valencia, Ireland, to Newfoundland. The engineer was Sir Charles Bright, who was knighted for his success. The first two messages were sent on August 5, and were from the queen of England to the president of the United States and his reply. But after sending 271 messages the cable proved a failure, and a perfect one was not secured until 1866.

Xenia Makes Cut In Appropriation

The city council held a recess on Friday evening, for the purpose of passing the regular semi-annual appropriation ordinance for the second half of the fiscal year, beginning June 31 and ending December 31, 1912. The ordinance provides for appropriations very similar in amount to the appropriations embodied in the appropriation ordinance for the first six months except in the matter of water and light. Owing to the shortage in funds the appropriation for water rent was cut in half and the appropriation for street lighting was cut from $4883 to $350. This simply means that both the Water Company and the Electric Light Company will have to sue the city for their money and collect out of the Sinking Fund on a court judgment. For the first half of the present year an appropriation of $3250 was made for water. The ordinance for the last half carries an appropriation of only $1622.

In other departments the appropriations are practically the same except that the appropriation for salary of regular firemen is cut from $2,190 to $1,850. Other reductions in the total amount of the appropriations are made by cutting out funds for incidentals.

No other business was transacted at the meeting.—Xenia Gazette.

TIME TO ACT.

Never, perhaps, since the agitation which resulted in building the present turnpikes throughout Ohio began, has there been so much said and written and so much work done too, with reference to better roads, as at the present time.

There are a number of good reasons for the present agitation or good roads movement as it is called.

Everywhere, every day people are realizing that good roads and good streets are a necessity and not a luxury, which can be dispensed with.

The activity for better roads and streets is not due entirely to the fact that the present thoroughfares are wearing out. While that is the fact yet the existence of that other fact that the present day vehicles, both those designed for pleasure and those designed for the work of transportation of merchandise and produce require better roads. The residents of the municipality have come to learn that the country roads are as necessary to their prosperity as they are to the prosperity of the residents of the rural districts and that even as to them the good roads are beneficial in a commercial way in all seasons of the year.

The idea that country roads were only of benefit to the people of the cities and towns in that they could be used for pleasure, has been discarded and now in cities and towns as well as in the rural districts throughout almost every section the good roads movement is on in earnest with a practically unanimous public sentiment favoring it and pushing the good work along.

It is now a generally recognized fact that the man who brings a load of produce from the farm into the city must figure the cost of transportation in accordance with the poorest stretch of road over which he has to travel. He cannot pull any load the entire distance of his journey if it be greater in tonnage than will permit of transportation over the most undesirable bit of roadway.

This is equally true of the man in the city who needs go into the country with wares to sell and there are many such.

In the first instance the people in the cities and towns must pay to the farmer the extra costs thus incurred and in the latter it is the same old shoe but on the other foot.

Looking at the proposition from the purely selfish standpoint of dollars and dimes, almost any reasonable proposition which has for its object securing better highways should be supported and that is the view people almost without exception are taking of the matter.

What is true of the highways in the rural districts is true also of the streets of the cities and it is high time that the agitation in both country and city be crystallized into form and substance and theorizing and word spilling be traded for something more tangible.

Talk is good enough in its place and time, but the time has now come for action.

MAKE START

Prudent Man
Begins With
Savings Bank

By JOHN M. OSKISON

FOR the average man, as the Business Almanac points out, all investment starts with the savings bank. A few men make money suddenly or inherit a considerable amount and become sudden investors. The rule is that a man must be a saver of money for a considerable time before he becomes a buyer of securities. So the first and most vital question is, "What shall I do with my small savings?"

There are more than forty forms of co-operative, mutual benefit, savings and other similar associations in the United States. They are organized to take care of savings in any amount from the smallest to the greatest sums. Many of them are excellently managed, honest in intent and are worthy of encouragement. Some are properly looked upon with suspicion.

Most generally used, of course, are the savings banks. They have been tried by fire. Speaking generally, they are the most secure financial institutions we have. Our states have wisely regulated their operations—most of them have. Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York have done best. Ohio has a good law. Less protection for the savings bank depositor is offered in the south and west than is judged wise to furnish in the east. Here are some of the prohibitions the New York law puts upon its savings institutions:

They cannot loan money on notes, drafts, bills of exchange or any personal securities whatever.

They cannot buy stocks.

They cannot buy bonds or other forms of security issued by any industrial, manufacturing or street railway company.

They cannot buy or loan money on farm lands nor on mortgages outside of New York state.

They cannot buy bonds which are not, at least in part, first mortgages on the property bonded.

They cannot buy real estate bonds or mortgages until after a committee of the bank's trustees makes a thorough examination of the property on which the bonds or mortgages are to be placed.

All of these restrictions are salutary. They indicate some of the safeguards a prudent man ought to throw around his savings and also the tests he ought to make of his investment selections.

Report Shows Railway Returns Are Diminishing

Confidence in the ability of a railway company properly to continue its operations and adequately to maintain and extend its facilities depends in greatest measure upon its net operating revenue. This is what is left of the receipts from traffic constituting the total operating revenue, after the operating expenses have been met. As the mileage of the railways tends to increase year by year, an accurate measure is obtained of the operating revenues, operating expenses, and net operating revenue by ascertaining what they have amounted to for each mile. It may be, for example, as was the case in March, that while in the aggregate net operating revenue has increased, it has decreased when measured per mile of line.

Monthly summaries of the revenues and expenses of the steam railways of the United States have been compiled by the Bureau of Railway Economics from the reports filed month by month by the railways with the Interstate Commerce Commission, for the twenty-two months from July, 1910 to April, 1912, the last month for which returns are available. Net operating revenue per mile of line for the railways as a whole in comparison with the corresponding months of the previous year decreased in eighteen of these months, and increased in but four. The decrease per mile of line per month was as great in amount as $53, and as great in ratio as 15 per cent. The greatest increase for any one of the four months showing increases was $31, or 14.1 per cent. This was in February, 1912, and was exceptional as this month contained one more day than February, 1911. The highest average net operating revenue per mile of line for any one month of this period was $409, the lowest $203.

Seven of the ten months from July 1911 to April, 1912, show decreases in net operating revenue per mile of line as compared with the corresponding months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911; and eleven of the months of the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1911, showed decreases in comparison with the respective corresponding months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910. It is therefore evident that the trend of railway net revenue has been downward for the past two years.

The summary for April, 1912, shows that net operating revenue was less than for April, 1911, by $6,026,440, equivalent per mile of line to $33, or 11.4 per cent. This net operating revenue, which in the aggregate amounted to $56,362,945, averaged $8.57 for each mile of line for each day in April, less by $1.11 than each day of April of last year. This is the gross income per mile of line per day before anything has been taken out for taxes, rentals, interest on bonds, appropriations for betterments or dividends. Taxes for April amounted to $44 per mile of line, an increase of 9.4 per cent.

FROM BEYOND THE STARS THE FIERY METEOR CAME A WE-INSPIRING SPECTACLE

Last Night at 9:45 o'Clock the People of This Section Were Startled by a Stranger in the Sky.

COMING FROM SPACE DISAPPEARS INTO SPACE

Over a Wide Section of Three States the Monster From the Unexplored Heavens Seemed Right at Hand—An Experience of a Lifetime to Those Who Witnessed the Spectacle.

Monday evening about fifteen minutes before ten o'clock, many residents of Washington and vicinity were fortunate in being able to witness an awe-inspiring spectacle, when a gigantic meteor or "shooting star" made its appearance in the heavens, apparently to Washington people, just a little west of the city, and disappeared over the western section.

The sky was clear as crystal and myriads of bright stars studded the heavens and by far the greater number of residents were out of doors in an effort to obtain relief from the heat, when the fiery monster from the unknown precincts beyond the stars made its appearance.

The opinions of eye witnesses differ as to the size, shape and color of the strange body as well as to the length of time it occupied in crossing the heavens.

The most generally expressed opinion as to the size was that it appeared to be about three times the size of the electric street lamps, the light was somewhat whiter with a rim of greenish red, and the time consumed in crossing the line of vision about four seconds.

The vision was not the one which ordinarily attends the flight of a meteor through space, a not uncommon occurrence during the summer months. Last night's spectacle was on a scale so magnificent as to inspire the thoughtful with the grandeur of it all and awaken the higher and nobler sentiments. The guilty and the superstitious quaked with abject terror. It seemed that the very heavens had opened up and a glimpse into the great beyond was at hand.

The course of the meteor appearing high in the western heavens, seemed to be a little east of south and those whose verandahs faced to the west and north were in direct line with its pathway. Those who were facing the east or south were denied a sight which comes but once in a life time.

One resident of the city who had an excellent view described the light as one very much like the one which follows the flash from the flying trolley on the overhead wires during icy weather. The light covered a wide section of the heavens and was not like a streamer or tail—a great section of the sky was illumined and the street lamps for those few seconds were dimmed as by a flash of the most vivid lightning.

Many and varied are the accounts of the spectacle given by those who witnessed the phenomenon and many and varied are the recounting of similar visitations in years gone by. The meteor or bolt of lightning which struck and tore a great hole in the sidewalk on West Temple street in 1887 came in for its share of the reminiscent talk as well as the great meteor which struck down in the hills of Ross county years ago at high noon.

Recollections and traditions were searched to the remotest recesses for similar or more awe inspiring spectacles, but without impression on those who saw with their own eyes the visitor of Monday night.

From all over the county come reports of the impressions of those who were fortunate enough to get a glimpse of the fiery monster. From all sections of this state, from Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois come the dispatches, each community thinking the heavenly visitor was peculiar to that particular locality.

From Louisville, Ky., comes the report that consternation reigned on the river front Monday night when a meteor apparently two feet in diameter, shot out of the sky like a blazing cannon ball and fell into the river within a few feet of the Big Four bridge.

Hundreds of negro roustabouts and others on the levee saw the flaming missile. Many ran away and others more terrified fell on their knees and prayed.

Those who saw it say the meteor was several minutes in flight before striking the water.

And Springfield, Ohio, reports that a large meteor was seen from the city shortly after 9 o'clock Monday night. It came from the north and went in a southerly direction. It was about as large as an electric street light, and was so low that people on the street thought it would strike the business blocks. The meteor apparently burst.

And from Hamilton, Ohio, this report is sent out:

At 9:45 o'clock Monday night a meteor crossed the southwestern part of Hamilton and was plainly visible. It appeared to be a big ball of fire with a long streak of light following in its wake. Harry Lutkehouse, night signal operator at the Western Union office, watched the meteor in its flight across the city. He says it disappeared in the southern horizon after being visible probably one minute.

From these reports from wide sections, it will be seen that the reports current here as to size were not exaggerated and it is also apparent that the report that the meteor struck in the Ohio river near Louisville is incorrect.

So large a body as this one must have been to be so clearly visible over such a wide section, could not have struck at the point indicated without creating dire havoc.

The most plausible view now is that the meteor disappeared in space without striking the earth's surface at all. The fiery body must have been of enormous proportions. It seemed as close to the people of this section as it did to the terrified negro roustabouts on the levee at Louisville, two hundred miles away.

FIRES ON BURGLAR WHO DROPS TO EARTH

Unknown Man Tries to Burglarize the Fred Creamer Residence Near Midnight Hour.

MEETS WITH WARM RECEPTION

Fellow Escapes, But It Is Believed He Suffered a Wound From 32-Caliber Ball—Had Forced a Screen and Rear Door When Discovered by Mr. Creamer, Who Immediately Secures Gun and Gives Rascal Scare of His Life—No Arrests Made.

For a short time Monday night about eleven o'clock, the Creamer home on Columbus avenue was a scene of considerable excitement, due to the presence of a burglar who came very near losing his life when Mr. Fred Creamer opened fire upon him with a 32-calibre revolver, and it is believed that when the man made his escape he carried a wound from one of the bullets.

Mr. Creamer was awakened about eleven o'clock by a noise around the rear of the house. A few moments sufficed to assure him that some one was trying to force the window or door. Arising, Mr. Creamer stole quietly to the place where he always keeps a loaded revolver, secured the weapon and took up his position at a side window with the hope that the man would show himself. He did not have long to wait, for the fellow stole around the house and came to a halt directly under the window where a warm reception was awaiting him.

When the fellow paused, Mr. Creamer aimed a few feet from him and pulled the trigger, expecting him to take to his heels, but in this he was mistaken, for the fellow flattened himself against the house and remained quiet a few moments, indicating that he was an old hand at burglary. After remaining hidden a few moments he made a sudden dash for liberty, going toward the alley.

Leaning far out the window in order to secure a good view of the fleeing man, Mr. Creamer took deliberate aim and fired. As soon as he could see he beheld that the man was down, and had fallen when he fired, although he made no outcry. The fellow picked himself up and made another break for liberty and again drew another leaden pellet in his direction. Scrambling through the yard he eventually reached the alley and disappeared.

Upon examining the rear door it was found that a screen had been torn out and the door partly forced, and that a few minutes more would have allowed him to step into the house.

Mr. Creamer got a good view of the man and says he was white, of medium build, had light hair and was dressed in a fairly well appearing suit. "I shot to kill him the last two times," said Mr. Creamer, "and believe the second shot took effect."

The police were on the scene shortly after the shooting, but no trace of the fellow has been found.

Too Much Booze And Men Pay Fine

John Barker, a resident of Logtown and Thomas Cartwright, were picked up on the street Monday night by Chief McCoy, who found both of the men very much intoxicated.

The pair were locked up in the city prison over night and after sleeping off the effects of the tanglefoot they were arraigned before Mayor Smith, both pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication, and both drawing the usual fine.

Cartwright paid his fine at once and Barker was released in order that he might secure the price of his drunk from some friends.

WHAT BEAUTIFUL HAIR!

"Oh, Grace, what beautiful hair you have!" "Yes, Mary, and I owe it all to a most delightful English shampoo made from tonic cleansing herbs, different from anything else in the world. Any one can shampoo their own hair so easily with it; it frees the scalp from dandruff, and irritation and you see, it does make the hair grow. It is called Mrs. Mason's Old English Shampoo Cream."

"You know, the Duchess of Marlborough, Mme. Melba and the leading society women of New York, London and Paris would not use and recommend it if it were not the best in the world."

"The Paxton Toilet Co. of Boston, Mass., sent me a booklet written by that famous English Hair Specialist, Mrs. K. Mason of London, England, and it contained reproductions of autograph letters from many of these famous women."

"Why don't you try Mrs. Mason's Old English Shampoo Cream for those scanty locks of yours?"

Blackmer & Tanquary our local druggists sell it, and a 25c tube is enough for three or four shampoos. They will return your money if you don't like it.

$450,000 for Paying Debts of D. T. & I.

A special dispatch from Grand Rapids, Mich., under date of July 8, regarding a large issue of receiver's certificates for the D. T. & I. railroad, says:

"District Judge Clarence Sessions authorized the issuance of $450,000 in receiver's certificates for the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railway here today. This case should have come under the jurisdiction of the Eastern Division of the State Federal court, but during the vacancy of the bench at Detroit Judge Sessions is acting in a state-wide capacity, and George B. Johnson, receiver for the railway, and Peral S. Drake, attorney, both of Detroit, journeyed here to secure the concession from the bench.

"The certificates are to be used for the payment of creditors, the completion of present contracts and repairs along the roadway. The sale of the railway is scheduled for early in October.

Five Engineers Surveying C. H. & D.

A party of five civil engineers are busily engaged establishing levels on the C. H. & D. railroad, using the elevations established by the government as a basis of operations.

The men will be in this vicinity for some two weeks, during which time they will establish the first accurate levels and obtain the most important data ever obtained by the road.

Those familiar with railroad affairs see in the work here a vast improvement all along the C. H. & D. and look for regrading and laying heavier steel to take place within a short time, together with other work costing hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The engineers themselves are non-communative as to what plans may be behind their work at this point.

Truitt Recovering Will Soon Be Well

Samuel Truitt is recovering from a severe attack of diphtheria, and it is now believed that within the next week or ten days the quarantine can be lifted.

Truitt has steadfastly refused to take medical treatment, and as the disease does not affect a grown person like it does a child, the disease has about spent itself and he is on the road to recovery. He claims his throat is not sore, and that he will soon be all right. The Truitt lad who was ill with the disease, is now completely recovered, his life being saved by the large doses of antitoxin.

J. H. Jones, living on the Bogus Road, is suffering from blood poisoning the result of a pitchfork time penetrating his right hand. Prompt medical attention saved the arm and probably his life, and he is now on the road to recovery.

The hand is still badly swollen and he has no use of the fingers, but the danger is practically ended.

Prominent Man Dies in Waters

Harry M. Porter, a prominent Ross county citizen, was drowned in the Scioto river near Ford's rifle, a short distance from Chillicothe.

Porter and a number of others were seeking for bait when the man stepped into a deep hole and was soon drowned. The hole was a few feet in diameter and 13 feet in depth, proving a veritable death trap.

The body was recovered shortly after his death.

PASSING OF THE FOX IN FAYETTE COUNTY

A man who owns a farm near the outskirts of the county, came into town a few days ago and disposed of a large number of chickens, stating that the reason he did this was because the foxes were so bad in his neighborhood that they were making great inroads on his flock of chickens, having carried off at least 25 during the past few weeks.

The pest of foxes is an unusual one at this day in Fayette county, and only a very few parts of it are bothered with reynard and his hungry family of little fellows whose appetites at this time of the year are usually ravenous, and it is to keep his family from starving that Mr. Fox goes forth on his mission of theft from the farmer's poultry yard.

A quarter of a century ago the county was overrun with foxes, and the trappers found plenty of them, and fox chases had not disappeared. Previous to that time when reynard was still more numerous and before the country was so well fenced, fox chases were of frequent occurrence, and furnished great sport for the men of that day, who pursued Mr. Fox with a large pack of hounds, while the men rode horseback.

Some times these chases lasted for almost a day at a time, some times longer, and a score or more of men and boys assisted the pack of hounds in the chase, while the sly tactics of the shrewd animal they were pursuing frequently threw the eager hounds from the trail.

With the disappearance of the timber and other places for the fox to hide, and the relentless war made upon him by trappers, reynard has been driven from the county and slain until only a few remain and these are found only in the localities where unusually large tracts of timber are located, or embankments where Mr. Fox may find secure retreat, or a comparatively safe home in which to rear his family.

The hill counties still contain a great many foxes owing to the ideal homes furnished by clefts in the rocks and unfrequented spots.

Cyclists Clash One Badly Hurt

Going at rapid speed, Clem Palmer and Raymond Miller collided on Court street as they were riding bicycles Monday evening about 7:45 and Palmer, who is 13 years of age, was hurled with great violence to the street, rendering him unconscious.

He was carried into Dr. Roy Brown's office and quickly revived, but it was some time before he recovered from his dazed condition and was taken to the home of his father, W. M. Palmer on ePabody avenue.

The lad fell upon his face and breast, causing a number of bad contusions and painful cuts on his hands and face. When he was first picked up it was thought he had been fatally injured.

The Miller lad, beyond a severe shaking up, escaped uninjured.

TAKES FEARFUL PLUNGE ESCAPES FATAL INJURIES

Falling headlong down a hoisting shaft for a distance of 57 feet and escaping serious injuries is the remarkable experience which befell Mack Reynolds, assistant to Head Engineer DeAtley, at the Lloyd elevator, about five o'clock Monday evening.

Reynolds, who is a young man and has been boarding at Dr. A. A. Hyer's near the elevator, was seated upon a small piece of timber on top of the elevator, and lost his balance, falling backward into an elevator shaft some five feet square and extending to the bottom. He made frantic efforts to save himself but failed to catch the edge of the shaft and an instant later he was plunging through space to the bottom of the shaft.

His horrified companions hurried to the bottom expecting to find him crushed and lifeless, but the young man met them with the assurance that he was not badly injured. He alighted upon his side, having struck a cable wire higher up in the shaft.

He suffered some very painful bruises and cuts, but outside of these was uninjured, and Tuesday morning Reynolds' escape from death is his work, little the worse for his horrible experience of Monday evening. Reynolds' escape from death is one of the most remarkable in the history of the state.

ODD ISLAND TRIBE

Queer Inhabitants of the Land of Siar.

Whole Population Number Only 140. Yet Forms a Distinct Tribe With Manners and Customs Peculiar to Itself.

Friedrich Wilhelm Hafen. — No international exposition or large fair is supposed to be complete nowadays without its native village, where two score or so of men, women and children, preferably cannibals, from some far distant land, and supposed to live more or less in their native state for the edification of the curious.

A visit to Siar reminds one irresistibly of such an exposition village; the difference being that the inhabitants instead of displaying their charms to crowds of civilized visitors, are engaged in doing so to each other. It is hard, on visiting the island, to realize that the natives are specially got up for one's particular benefit.

The island of Siar, which is less than a mile round, lies in an archipelago on the coast of German New Guinea and close to the principal port in the colony, Friedrich Wilhelm Hafen. This town boasts of a white population of about 25 and contains only ten or a dozen houses half hidden among the coconut trees.

The whole population of the island of Siar is about 140, and these people really constitute a tribe distinct from the inhabitants of the mainland or of the other islands. The natives of the mainland, who are themselves sufficiently curious people to excite the wonder of anybody, are ready and anxious to point out the islanders to visitors and make money out of one by rowing one over in a boat on the monthly visit of a steamer.

On approaching the island nothing is seen but the dense vegetation which covers it all over. However, on penetrating a few yards inland two clearings are reached around which are grouped 30 or so huts that form the village. The word hut is really too dignified a one to describe their rude dwellings; strictly speaking, they live, eat and sleep on a straw and wooden platform raised four or five feet from the ground, and which is covered over by a rudely-thatched grass roof. There are no sides to the dwelling, the front and back being generally quite open, although the slanting roof extends so far down as to form eaves which come below the level of the platform. Access to the platform is furnished by some logs placed so as to form a sloping ladder and in addition to the main one the Papuans have a custom of providing a smaller one to be used by the dogs.

What little work needs to be done on the island seems to be done by the women; the men are apparently too deeply occupied in exhibiting themselves to the other members of the community. Their costumes may be said to consist of a loin cloth, which is really the only article of actual dress they have; however, to make up for the lack of tailor-made garments, the rest of the body is fairly covered with miscellaneous ornaments. Every man has around his forehead a large number of dog's teeth made into a necklace; these teeth are looked upon as being quite necessary, and the desire not to be without them is so strong that a few of them are usually sufficient to buy a wife. These teeth form a good setting for his elaborate headdress; the hair is carefully fussed up, dyed a rusty red, surmounted by a flat circular shell, and decorated with feathers and colored grasses, sticking outward and upward a distance of a foot or more.

OBSERVE ANCIENT CEREMONY

The ancient ceremony of the planting of the "penny hedge," or horn-garth, was observed recently near Whitby, England. The custom is supposed to be of feudal origin. Its observance is connected with a farm about six miles from Whitby near Robin Hood's Bay, and if the ceremony be not duly observed "on the morn of the eve of Ascension Day" the farm lands must revert to the holder or holders of the manorial rights. The tenant of the farm along with the bailiff lays the hedge with "ten stakes, ten strout-towers, and ten yedders." The ancient horn is blown, the tenant shouts, "Out on ye, out on ye," and the ceremony is over.

LARGEST SPHINX YET FOUND

Remarkable Discovery in Egypt—Linen From Tombs Fresh as if Made Yesterday.

London.—The largest couchant Sphinx ever discovered is one result of the last season's work in Egypt of the British School of Archaeology there, an account of which was given recently at University college, London, by Professor Flinders Petrie.

The Sphinx was found in Memphis. It is 26 feet long and weighs over 80 tons. It is probably a work of the nineteenth dynasty, about 1300 B. C. Other enormous monuments were excavated. In the Temple of Ptah at Memphis was found another great Sample of Egyptian Sculpture.

Sphinx, inscribed with the name of Rameses II. Another monument of great interest that was laid bare is a large group in red granite representing Rameses II. standing beside the god Ptah, of whose temple that monarch was a lavish benefactor.

Finds of importance were made elsewhere. In a large cemetery at Tarkah were discovered a number of tombs, about 600 in all, the earliest being prior to the age of Menes and the founding of Memphis, about B. C. 6000, while the cemetery seems to have been used as a place of burial until Roman times. The preservation of the tombs and their contents was remarkable.

Linen of the pre-Mena age was as clean and fresh as if it had just come from the loom. The coffins, many of them made in the form of houses of the period, were excellent in preservation. Very interesting was the discovery of a number of basket or wickerwork coffins, a curious forerunner of the earth-to-earth burial movement of the present day. Many beautiful baskets and examples of platings were discovered.

The collection will be exhibited in London in about a month's time.

"COP" GOT REAL GRIZZLY HUG

Cinnamon Bear Embraces Policeman in Ridgfield Park, Hackensack, N. J.

Hackensack, N. J.—Policeman William Grassow, of Ridgfield Park, had the fright of his life when he encountered an Italian with a big cinnamon bear on Ridgfield avenue.

Bruin was up on a telegraph pole doing a stunt, for which his master received ten cents, when the officer hove in sight and asked the man for his license. While the policeman's attention was diverted the bear came down the pole, rushed on Grassow and gave him the grizzly hug.

The officer's uniform was nearly torn from his back and his face was scratched in many places. He called for help, and Patrolman Cole arrived on the scene in time to see Grassow extricate himself from the "bunny hug" by a supreme effort.

The showman had tried in vain to make the bear release his hold on the officer. When bruin did so both bear and man beat a hasty retreat across the river to Little Ferry. The policeman started to follow, but the bear looked back at him and growled. Consequently no arrests were made.

ABRAHAM'S OAK, PALESTINE

Many pilgrims to that part of Palestine connected with the history of Abraham visit the tree here pictured. It is known as Abraham's oak and is evidently so ancient that the natives find no difficulty in believing the legend that the patriarch sat under the shade of its boughs.

BIGGEST BABY IN WORLD

James Adolph Cody, of Mount Tiry, Ga., is believed to be the biggest baby in the world. At birth he was just an ordinary big baby, but when about two months old he began growing in size and flesh and kept steadily at it until now, at the age of three years, he is classed among the wonderful babies in the world. If he keeps on growing until he attains manhood he will be a giant. He weighs 115 pounds and measures 44 inches in height, with arms extending he measures 43 inches from the tips of fingers across the shoulders. Other measurements are: Bust, 38 inches; waist, 39 inches; hips, 45 inches; thigh, 25 inches; length of foot, 7 1/4 inches; strength is well in keeping with his size and his appetite is more like that of a big healthy farmer than a three-year-old child. He rides horseback and is fond of the automobile.

NOTHING LIVES IN DEAD SEA

The Dead Sea in Syria is so called because nothing can live in its waters. Owing to its density fish could not sink in it, and some of its salts are powerful antiseptics, fatal to any form of life. The salt of the ocean is nearly all common table salt.

WARMING THE WORLD

Artificial warming of the world is one of the greatest of modern problems and yet the earth is itself a vast furnace, whose flames are sometimes aggressively active and destructive. Italians are planning to use some of this heat. A boiler is to be installed at some point where the internal fires of Vesuvius are accessible and hot water is to be piped to the neighboring towns.

CHILDREN SOLD AS SLAVES

Annual Fair is Held at Friedrichshafen to Loan Boys and Girls to Farmers.

Friedrichshafen.—A strange custom prevails in the Tyrolean Alps. Landless parents sell their children for the summer season to the largest landowner, the sales being effected at an annual fair held at Friedrichshafen, on the Lake of Constance, at Easter time. This year 125 boys and 30 girls, between the ages of eleven and sixteen years, were offered. Purchasers were not lacking, about 600 peasant farmers from Baden, Wurttemberg, and Bavaria had come to get child-slaves to work on their farms. The purchasers behaved exactly as at the cattle market, scrutinizing the boys and girls, sometimes feeling their biceps, and then making an offer to the person in charge of the party.

Owing to the demand this year being so much greater than the supply, the prices ruled high, $60 being given for a sturdy lad of sixteen, big enough to wield the hayfork or a scythe effectively, while $50 was given for one of the older girls who looked as if she could do a long day's weeding in the sun. One the other hand, $12 was considered enough for little, underfed mites of eleven, who ought to have been at school.

The money, of course, goes to the children's parents, landless men in the remotest valleys of Tyrol, woodsmen and the like, who, one would be glad to believe, are driven by sheer destitution to send their children to work for strangers in a foreign country. The child slaves are sent home at the end of October—all that is, but some who succumb to overwork, ill-treatment, and home-sickness. That the children are not always well treated is well known, but a black-list is kept, and an offender has a poor chance of making a purchase thereafter.

The whole business of the child-market, which is of great antiquity, is now arranged by a clerical society, the activity of which is violently attacked by part of the local press, which demands its suppression.

Sounded That Way.

Miss Brown was giving an elaborate description of a blacksmith preparatory to teaching Longfellow's poem to her pupils:

"Now children, we are going to learn a poem today about some one who works very hard. He is very large and has great arms that can lift such heavy things! His face is blackened with soot that comes from his great blazing fires! And he wears a dirty black apron and he has a fire that glows, oh, so red, and whenever he makes anything he put it into his fire and then pounds it with a great big hammer, which makes the loudest clanging noise and makes the sparks fly about in every direction. Now, who can tell me what I have been describing?"

A little maid who had listened to these vivid details with eyes twice their natural size sprang to her feet and said in an awed whisper: "The devil!"—Housekeeper.

Composite Work.

Throughout the ten years of their existence the Leggett twins had invariably shared joys, clothes, and gifts of candy or toys. Apparently their mother, the brisk and capable guardian of seven half-orphans, never thought of them separately.

"What are you planning to do this afternoon, Martha?" asked a visiting aunt, who had witnessed a strenuous morning. "Rest, I hope."

"Rest!" said Mrs. Leggett, in a tone of scorn. "I guess not! 'I've got to take the twins to the dentist to have that tooth out, and then to the oculist to get a pair of glasses fitted, and then to the shoemaker's to see if he can stretch one of their boots so they can wear it without making such a fuss and saying it hurts every time they put it on.'—Youth's Companion.

Exactly.

"Do you believe that poverty is comparative?" "It must be when a girl complains that she cannot afford to have more than one diamond necklace for all costumes."

CYPRUS IS CHANGED

Island Well Governed by British for 34 Years.

Young Greeks Want Union With Greece—People Keeping Peace Between Turks and Christians, Writes Correspondent.

London.—A correspondent, writing from Nicosia, Cyprus, recalls that just 34 years ago the island was handed over to the custody of the English people by the tactics of a great English prime minister. The annexation was the outcome of the Berlin conference of 1878.

The Cyprus of 1878 was described as a "whitely brown paper colored, desert smitten, God forsaken island." But the British are a nation of housemaids, and their first act on acquiring new territory is to sweep and to clean. And right nobly has the work in this instance been done. Dirt, decay and disease have been vanquished, all have disappeared.

The population at the time of the British occupation was 180,000, of which two-thirds were Greeks and the remainder Turks. The art of keeping the peace between these different nationalities is one calling forth a high degree of diplomacy and integrity. Witness the difficult position of a police official in Famagusta, who was waited on by a body of Greeks, asking if they might have a procession the following Tuesday.

"Why do you wish a procession?" he asked.

"To commemorate the ever distressful taking of Constantinople by the infidel Turks," was the mournful reply. Half an hour later a Turkish deputation called upon the same official. Had they the permission of his excellency to fire the cannons the following Tuesday?

"Why do you wish to fire the cannons?" he asked.

ODD ISLAND TRIBE

Queer Inhabitants of the Land of Siar.

Whole Population Number Only 140. Yet Form a Distinct Tribe With Manners and Customs Peculiar to Itself.

Friedrich Wilhelm Hafen. — No international exposition or large fair is supposed to be complete nowadays without its native village, where two score or so of men, women and children, preferably cannibals, from some far distant land, and supposed to live more or less in their native state for the edification of the curious.

A visit to Siar reminds one irresistibly of such an exposition village; the difference being that the inhabitants instead of displaying their charms to crowds of civilized visitors, are engaged in doing so to each other. It is hard, on visiting the island, to realize that the natives are specially got up for one's particular benefit.

The island of Siar, which is less than a mile round, lies in an archipelago on the coast of German New Guinea and close to the principal port in the colony, Friedrich Wilhelm Hafen. This town boasts of a white population of about 25 and contains only ten or a dozen houses half hidden among the coconut trees.

The whole population of the island of Siar is about 140, and these people really constitute a tribe distinct from the inhabitants of the mainland or of the other islands. The natives of the mainland, who are themselves sufficiently curious people to excite the wonder of anybody, are ready and anxious to point out the islanders to visitors and make money out of one by rowing one over in a boat on the monthly visit of a steamer.

On approaching the island nothing is seen but the dense vegetation which covers it all over. However, on penetrating a few yards inland two clearings are reached around which are grouped 30 or so huts that form the village. The word hut is really too dignified a one to describe their rude dwellings; strictly speaking, they live, eat and sleep on a straw and wooden platform raised four or five feet from the ground, and which is covered over by a rudely-thatched grass roof. There are no sides to the dwelling, the front and back being generally quite open, although the slanting roof extends so far down as to form eaves which come below the level of the platform. Access to the platform is furnished by some logs placed so as to form a sloping ladder and in addition to the main one the Papuans have a custom of providing a smaller one to be used by the dogs.

What little work needs to be done on the island seems to be done by the women; the men are apparently too deeply occupied in exhibiting themselves to the other members of the community. Their costumes may be said to consist of a loin cloth, which is really the only article of actual dress they have; however, to make up for the lack of tailor-made garments, the rest of the body is fairly covered with miscellaneous ornaments. Every man has around his forehead a large number of dog's teeth made into a necklace; these teeth are looked upon as being quite necessary, and the desire not to be without them is so strong that a few of them are usually sufficient to buy a wife. These teeth form a good setting for his elaborate headdress; the hair is carefully fussed up, dyed a rusty red, surmounted by a flat circular shell, and decorated with feathers and colored grasses, sticking outward and upward a distance of a foot or more.

OBSERVE ANCIENT CEREMONY

The ancient ceremony of the planting of the "penny hedge," or horn-garth, was observed recently near Whitley, England. The custom is supposed to be of feudal origin. Its observance is connected with a farm about six miles from Whitley near Robin Hood's Bay, and if the ceremony be not duly observed "on the morn of the eve of Ascension Day" the farm lands must revert to the holder or holders of the manorial rights. The tenant of the farm along with the bailiff lays the hedge with "ten stakes, ten stout-stewards, and ten yedders." The ancient horn is blown, the tenant shouts, "Out on ye, out on ye," and the ceremony is com-

LARGEST SPHINX YET FOUND

Remarkable Discovery in Egypt—Linen From Tombs Fresh as If Made Yesterday.

London.—The largest couchant Sphinx ever discovered is one result of the last season's work in Egypt of the British School of Archaeology there, an account of which was given recently at University college, London, by Professor Flinders Petrie. The Sphinx was found in Memphis. It is 26 feet long and weighs over 80 tons. It is probably a work of the nineteenth dynasty, about 1300 B. C. Other enormous monuments were excavated. In the Temple of Ptah at Memphis was found another great

Sample of Egyptian Sculpture.

Sphinx, inscribed with the name of Ramesses II. Another monument of great interest that was laid bare is a large group in red granite representing Ramesses II. standing beside the god Ptah, of whose temple that monarch was a lavish benefactor.

Findings of importance were made elsewhere. In a large cemetery at Tarkah were discovered a number of tombs, about 600 in all, the earliest being prior to the age of Menes and the founding of Memphis, about B. C. 6000, while the cemetery seems to have been used as a place of burial until Roman times. The preservation of the tombs and their contents was remarkable.

Linen of the pre-Mena age was as clean and fresh as if it had just come from the loom. The coffins, many of them made in the form of houses of the period, were excellent in preservation. Very interesting was the discovery of a number of basket or wickerwork coffins, a curious forerunner of the earth-to-earth burial movement of the present day. Many beautiful baskets and examples of plaitings were discovered.

The collection will be exhibited in London in about a month's time.

"COP" GOT REAL GRIZZLY HUG

Cinnamon Bear Embraces Policeman in Ridgefield Park, Hackensack, N. J.

Hackensack, N. J.—Policeman William Grassow, of Ridgefield Park, had the fright of his life when he encountered an Italian with a big cinnamon bear on Ridgefield avenue.

Bruin was up on a telegraph pole doing a stunt, for which his master received ten cents, when the officer hove in sight and asked the man for his license. While the policeman's attention was diverted the bear came down the pole, rushed on Grassow and gave him the grizzly hug.

The officer's uniform was nearly torn from his back and his face was scratched in many places. He called for help, and Patrolman Cole arrived on the scene in time to see Grassow extricate himself from the "bunny hug" by a supreme effort.

The showman had tried in vain to make the bear release his hold on the officer. When bruin did so both bear and man beat a hasty retreat across the river to Little Ferry. The policeman started to follow, but the bear looked back at him and growled. Consequently no arrests were made.

BIGGEST BABY IN WORLD

James Adolph Cody, of Mount Tiry, Ga., is believed to be the biggest baby in the world. At birth he was just an ordinary big baby, but when about two months old he began growing in size and flesh and kept steadily at it until now, at the age of three years, he is classed among the wonderful babies in the world. If he keeps on growing until he attains manhood he will be a giant. He weighs 115 pounds and measures 44 inches in height, with arms extending he measures 43 inches from the tips of fingers across the shoulders. Other measurements are: Bust, 38 inches; waist, 39 inches; hips, 45 inches; thigh, 25 inches; length of foot, 7 1/4 inches; strength is well in keeping with his size and his appetite is more like that of a big healthy farmer than a three-year-old child. He rides horseback and is fond of the automobile.

WARMING THE WORLD

Artificial warming of the world is one of the greatest of modern problems and yet the earth is itself a vast furnace, whose flames are sometimes aggressively active and destructive. Italians are planning to use some of this heat. A boiler is to be installed at some point where the internal fires of Vesuvius are accessible and hot water is to be piped to the neighboring towns.

Azores.

Trade conditions in the Azores are peculiar. The islands are small, and at best only a limited business can be done. As to lumber or timber, all of which is from the United States, the islands are supplied principally from cargoes of wrecked and damaged vessels. At least for the past four years this has prevailed, and during the first two weeks of January more than 150,000 feet of timber were discharged from a large steamer that encountered hurricane weather on its way from Mississippi to Europe and put into St. Michaels dismasted and with part of the deck load gone. To effect temporary repairs and permit the vessel to proceed the deck load was discharged and was sold at the low price of 2 cents per foot.—Consul Edward A. Creevey, St. Michaels.

QUEER LIVING FISH NET

A peculiar method of fishing is employed by the natives of certain of the islands of Oceania.

At stated intervals about two hundred of them will assemble on the beach, and all together plunge into the water, each carrying a branch of the cocoa palm.

At a given distance from the shore they will turn toward it, and form a compact half circle, each holding his palm branch perpendicularly in the water, thus forming a kind of seine. The leader of the party gives a signal, and this living net approaches the shore gradually, in perfect order, driving before it a multitude of fishes. Surrounded by this living wall and caught in the cocoa palm branches many of the fish are cast on the sands and others are killed with sticks.

CHILDREN SOLD AS SLAVES

Annual Fair Is Held at Friedrichshafen to Loan Boys and Girls to Farmers.

Friedrichshafen.—A strange custom prevails in the Tyrolean Alps. Landless parents sell their children for the summer season to the largest landowner, the sales being effected at an annual fair held at Friedrichshafen, on the Lake of Constance, at Easter time. This year 125 boys and 30 girls, between the ages of eleven and sixteen years, were offered. Purchasers were not lacking, about 600 peasant farmers from Baden, Wurtemberg, and Bavaria had come to get child-slaves to work on their farms. The purchasers behaved exactly as at the cattle market, scrutinizing the boys and girls, sometimes feeling their biceps, and then making an offer to the person in charge of the party.

Owing to the demand this year being so much greater than the supply, the prices ruled high, $60 being given for a sturdy lad of sixteen, big enough to wield the hayfork or a scythe effectively, while $50 was given for one of the older girls who looked as if she could do a long day's wedding in the sun. One the other hand, $12 was considered enough for little, underfed mites of eleven, who ought to have been at school.

The money, of course, goes to the children's parents, landless men in the remoter valleys of Tyrol, woodsmen and the like, who, one would be glad to believe, are driven by sheer destitution to send their children to work for strangers in a foreign country. The child slaves are sent home at the end of October—all, that is, but some who succumb to overwork, ill-treatment, and home-sickness. The children are not always well treated is well known, but a blacklist is kept, and an offender has a poor chance of making a purchase thereafter.

The whole business of the child-market, which is of great antiquity, is now arranged by a clerical society, the activity of which is violently attacked by part of the local press, which demands its suppression.

Sounded That Way.

Miss Brown was giving an elaborate description of a blacksmith preparatory to teaching Longfellow's poem to her pupils:

"Now children, we are going to learn a poem today about some one who works very hard. He is very large and has great arms that can lift such heavy things! His face is blackened with soot that comes from his great blazing fires! And he wears a dirty black apron and he has a fire that glows, oh, so red, and whenever he makes anything he put it into his fire and then pounds it with a great big hammer, which makes the loudest clanging noise and makes the sparks fly about in every direction. Now, who can tell me what I have been describing?"

A little maid who had listened to these vivid details with eyes twice their natural size sprang to her feet and said in an awed whisper:

"The devil."—Housekeeper.

Composite Work.

Throughout the ten years of their existence the Leggett twins had invariably shared joys, clothes, and gifts of candy or toys. Apparently their mother, the brisk and capable guardian of seven half-orphans, never thought of them separately.

"What are you planning to do this afternoon, Martha?" asked a visiting aunt, who had witnessed a strenuous morning. "Rest, I hope."

"Rest!" said Mrs. Leggett, in a tone of scorn. "I guess not! I've got to take the twins to the dentist to have that tooth out, and then to the oculist to get a pair of glasses fitted, and then to the shoemaker's to see if he can stretch one of their boots so they can wear it without making such a fuss and saying it hurts every time they put it on."—Youth's Companion.

CYPRUS IS CHANGED

Island Well Governed by British for 34 Years.

Young Greeks Want Union With Greece—People Keeping Peace Between Turks and Christians, Writes Correspondent.

London.—A correspondent, writing from Nicosia, Cyprus, recalls that just 34 years ago the island was handed over to the custody of the English people by the tactics of a great English prime minister. The annexation was the outcome of the Berlin conference of 1878.

The Cyprus of 1878 was described as a "whity brown paper colored, desert smitten, God forsaken island." But the British are a nation of housemaids, and their first act on acquiring new territory is to sweep and to clean. And right nobly has the work in this instance been done. Dirt, decay and disease have been vanquished, all have disappeared.

The population at the time of the British occupation was 180,000, of which two-thirds were Greeks and the remainder Turks. The art of keeping the peace between these different nationalities is one calling forth a high degree of diplomacy and integrity. Witness the difficult position of a police official in Famagusta, who was waited on by a body of Greeks, asking if they might have a procession the following Tuesday.

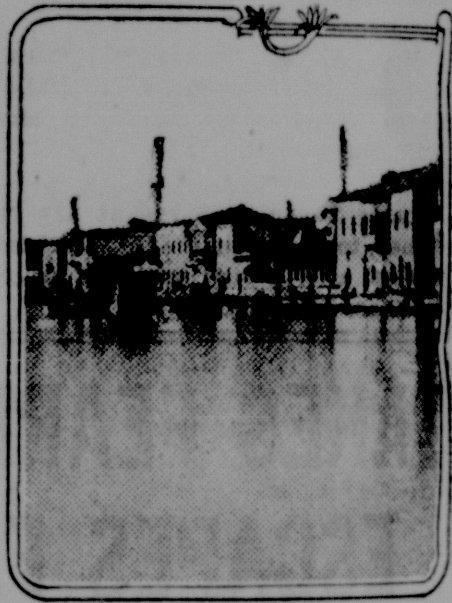

"Why do you wish a procession?" he asked.

"To commemorate the ever distressful taking of Constantinople by the infidel Turks," was the mournful reply. Half an hour later a Turkish deputation called upon the same official. Had they the permission of his excellency to fire the cannons the following Tuesday?

A PENNANT SAVED BY "PEERLESS LEADER" CHANCE

FEW players in baseball have had a busier career than Frank Leroy Chance, the so-called "Peerless Leader" of the Chicago Cubs. As a finished first baseman, an opportune hitter, a leader of men and a fighting manager, Chance has had few peers and no superiors.

He has led his men to victory four times in the National league, twice has lowered the colors of the White Sox and on two occasions has directed his conquering heroes to world's pennants. The Cub leader in all these struggles has loomed as the central figure inspiring to deeds of valor and revealing a battling spirit that has challenged the admiration even of his bitterest foes on the diamond.

Although Chance has been as steady as clockwork in his plays around first base, although his intuitive ability in directing his men has been a big factor in the Cubs' success, singularly enough he has figured in few spectacular plays that have stood out as thrilling pennant-winning feats of the diamond. There is one notable exception, however.

In 1909 the Cubs took a pennant from the White Sox in a city series and in the fourth game, one of the greatest ever played in Chicago, Manager Chance made a play that in itself saved a flag for his club and avenged the defeat of 1906 when Comiskey's men humbled the home rivals in the world's series.

Ed Walsh, Comiskey's greatest pitcher, was opposed by Orvie Overall, hurling one of the great games of his career. The Cubs had taken two games and the White Sox one. The South Siders needed this game to tie up the series.

Both Walsh and Overall were difficult to hit on that day, but the great spitball pitcher was a trifle wild at the start, very unusual for a slabbist numbering control as one of his reliable assets. The Cubs had dribbled in two runs in the first and third innings and the White Sox had counted a single run in the fourth.

Walsh had settled down to his matchless pace in which he was practically hitless. The hope of the Cubs lay in holding their advantage. Chance gave orders for his men to play for every ounce of energy they possessed and encouraged "Big Jeff" to keep up the good work against the hitless wonders.

And it was Chance himself who turned back his opponents at the danger point, saved the day for the Cubs and enabled his men to take the game that "cinched" the pennant.

The real crisis came in the fifth inning. Manager Sullivan lifted a fly to Sheppard. Walsh surprised Overall by reaching out and swinging on a wide one for a single over second. Overall was in a tight place when he had three balls on Altizer, but steadied and put over two strikes. Altizer hit the next ball pitched for a single to left center, Walsh pulling up to third.

As Isbell came up the signal was flashed for the squeeze play. Overall pitched to cut the outer edge, Isbell swung on the ball and Walsh dashed for home. It was a hard grounder down the first base foul line.

Divining his opponent's intentions, Chance did not hesitate what to do in the crisis. The Cubs' leader dashed out, fielded the ball in a flash, wheeled and whipped it to the plate. Kling received the sphere a few feet to the left of the home base and tagged Walsh sliding to the plate.

That bit of quick fielding and thinking probably saved the pennant for the Cubs. Had Chance wished to play safe by tagging Isbell, Walsh would have scored the tying run and the great pitcher had already settled down for one of his famous extra inning duels.

Artificial Rubies Are Easily Made

A recent London lawsuit, in which the relation between natural and artificial rubies was incidentally raised, brought to light a number of interesting facts regarding these stones. The so-called "reconstructed" rubies appeared on the Paris market a number of years ago. They were made by melting together fragments of natural rubies. Owing to "cloudiness" they had no great success. Later the "synthetic" stones appeared, made in the same way, except that the fragments were powdered, or instead of actual fragments an oxide of aluminum powder (of which substance the natural ruby is composed) was fused and crystallized. These stones can be made up to 10 carats in size, and are equal in appearance to the natural gems, although costing very much less. They are, in fact just as much rubies as the natural stones, being identical with the latter in luster, hardness and chemical composition. They can be detected by experts, however, by means "of the tiny bubbles and faint curved markings in the interior." Pure oxide of aluminum is colorless.

The color of the ruby is due to the presence of a small amount of chromic oxide. Apparently, therefore, the artificial stones can be colored to suit the taste of the purchaser. According to M. G. F. Herbert Smith, manufacturing jewelers have tried for several years to make artificial emeralds, as yet without success. Artificial diamonds have been crystallized out of carbon masses of various sorts, but in such small sizes as to be of no commercial value. It is not at all unlikely, however, that even the latter will be made in the laboratory in sizes suitable for gems. The chemistry of the artificial precious stones is simple enough. The difficulty seems to lie in creating the physical conditions necessary for the proper crystallization of the mixture.

My Worst Blunder

FAMOUS "BONEHEAD" PLAYS ON MAJOR LEAGUE DIAMONDS

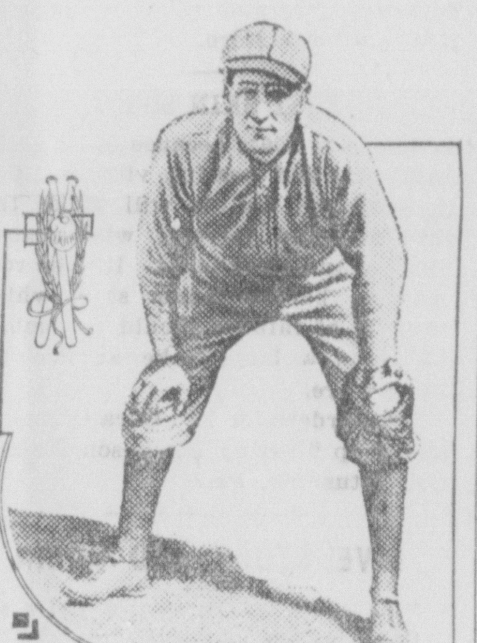

Explained by Leading Baseball Players to HUGH S. FULLERTON

By GEORGE MCBRIDE,

Shortstop Washington Club, Who Is Considered One of the Fastest Thinkers and Most Brilliant Men in the Game.

You never can tell. Sometimes when you think fastest you look worst. In baseball only one thing is certain and that is that it is certain to be uncertain. In almost every game something happens that spoils the best plans, and many is the game I have seen lost and won by something unexpected happening to upset the course of the entire game, both on defense and offense.

I remember a game well that I threw away by making a play that looked to be about the best possible and which I believe was the worst and most surprising mistake I ever made. The crowd didn't blame me, but I never have ceased kicking myself. It was a game we played in Philadelphia last season early. The Athletics were making a great fight to overcome the early lead that Detroit had piled up. If you remember, Detroit started like a crazy team and won 20 out of the first 22 games, putting the rest of the league in desperate positions. The Athletics were fighting fiercely for every game and we, with the Washington team, were equally anxious to win that day, for we won that one game we would break even on the trip and go home in nice position, with a chance to crawl up.

The game was rocking along rapidly, with every one on his toes every minute, and in the fifth inning we were one run to the good. Then came the play that I still think I had figured out correctly, but which went wrong and turned the game upside down.

The Athletics had the bases full with one man out and the pitcher was at bat. While he is one of the greatest pitchers in the country, he never has been noted for excellent Cobb at the bat, and we were not much worried over his hitting. There were two balls called on the batter. I figured it was ten thousand to one with the bases full and a weak-hitting pitcher up, with our pitcher a little wild—Mack would not let him hit at the next ball no matter what happened. I looked over and saw that the runner on second base was taking a long lead and running up with the ball every time it was pitched, going almost to third base. Not being at all afraid that the batter would even try to hit the ball, I decided that when the next ball was pitched I would go to second at top speed and attempt to catch the base runner off, which I thought would end all danger for that inning. When the ball was pitched I was going for second as fast as I could move. The ball was a fast one, straight over the plate, and to my astonishment the batter took a healthy swing and drove it down right through my position which I had vacated. If I had staid there it would have been an easy double play, but it went as a base hit, drove home two runs, and as we finally were beaten by two runs, my thinking lost the game.

The fact that he ought not to have hit the ball, under the circumstances, is bad enough, but the fact that he doesn't hit in that direction once a month even when he is hitting, makes the thing look like harder luck.

ONE MISTAKE BY HANK O'DAY

Did Not See Bunt Fly Caught by Frank Dwyer in Game Between Cincinnati and Baltimore.

Reference has been made, says the New York Sun, to the fact that Umpire Carpenter is now in the twelfth year of service with the Southern League. Hank O'Day umpired fifteen years for the National League and continuously. Bob Emslie has been a National League umpire still longer. Apropos of O'Day, his success as a manager this year makes him the most popular and revered man in Cincinnati, but he hasn't always been so regarded there. Soon after Hank began umpiring in the National League he was officiating in a Baltimore-Cincinnati game. Frank Dwyer was pitching and an Oriole bunted the ball. Hank made tracks for first base, thinking there would be a play there, but Dwyer caught the bunt on the fly. Hank didn't see that, and he called the batter safe at first base. Up to a short while ago they were still harping on that mistake of O'Day's in Cincinnati. However, there never was a better umpire than O'Day and a few boots can be forgiven him.

Zeider's Record.

Rollie Zeider's record of 15 put-outs at first base in five innings, made in a recent Chicago-New York game, is said to be a new one. In the nine innings Zeider had twenty put-outs. He had hoped to get them all, but the Yankee batters refused to have it that way.

Watch for Gleason.

Philadelphia fans recently presented Kid Gleason, the White Sox coach, with a $700 watch. The Kid says the watch contains all the latest improvements with the exception of a push-button.

Bloomington released Moxey Manuel, former White Sox pitcher.

Rube Benton has defeated every club in the National league at least once.

Charles Sterret, the Princeton catcher and this year's captain, has signed to play with the Yankees.

Jerry Downs is a pretty valuable utility man. He is another Heine Zimmerman, and that's saying something.

Otey Crandall is certainly the handy man of the Giants. The outfield, the infield and the pitcher's box all look alike to him.

O'Day says that the Reds are as good as the Giants, except for slabbmen. It may be. But that's a whale of an exception.

Pitcher Withers of the Kansas City club was released by Manager Carr to the Grand Rapids (Mich.) club of the Central league.

George Burns, the Giants recruit, began as a catcher, and says that any time all of the backstops are injured he will go behind the bat.

Many baseball men are of the opinion that Leon Ames would work better if worked oftener. When in form he has few superiors as a pitcher.

Pitcher Ashenfelter has been recalled from Springfield by Indianapolis. He was the leading southpaw of the Springfield club and noted for his control.

George Tebeau has had a couple of major league offers within the last week for "Red" Corridon, his shortstop. Tebeau will not part with him at present.

Tris Speaker is certainly out for leading honors in batting this year.

A PENNANT SAVED BY "PEERLESS LEADER" CHANCE

FEW players in baseball have had a busier career than Frank Leroy Chance, the so-called "Peerless Leader" of the Chicago Cubs. As a finished first baseman, an opportune hitter, a leader of men and a fighting manager, Chance has had few peers and no superiors.

He has led his men to victory four times in the National league, twice has lowered the colors of the White Sox and on two occasions has directed his conquering heroes to world's pennants. The Cub leader in all these struggles has loomed as the central figure inspiring to deeds of valor and revealing a battling spirit that has challenged the admiration even of his bitterest foes on the diamond.

Although Chance has been as steady as clockwork in his plays around first base, although his intuitive ability in directing his men has been a big factor in the Cubs' success, singularly enough he has figured in few spectacular plays that have stood out as thrilling pennant-winning feats of the diamond. There is one notable exception, however.

In 1909 the Cubs took a pennant from the White Sox in a city series and in the fourth game, one of the greatest ever played in Chicago, Manager Chance made a play that in itself saved a flag for his club and avenged the defeat of 1906 when Comiskey's men humbled the home rivals in the world's series.

Ed Walsh, Comiskey's greatest pitcher, was opposed by Orvie Overall, all hurling one of the great games of his career. The Cubs had taken two games and the White Sox one. The South Siders needed this game to tie up the series.

Both Walsh and Overall were difficult to hit on that day, but the great spitball pitcher was a trifle wild at the start, very unusual for a slabbist numbering control as one of his reliable assets. The Cubs had dribbled in two runs in the first and third innings and the White Sox had counted a single run in the fourth.

Walsh had settled down to his matchless pace in which he was practically hitless. The hope of the Cubs lay in holding their advantage. Chance gave orders for his men to play for every ounce of energy they possessed and encouraged "Big Jeff" to keep up the good work against the hitless wonders.

And it was Chance himself who turned back his opponents at the danger point, saved the day for the Cubs and enabled his men to take the game that "clinched" the pennant.

The real crisis came in the fifth inning. Manager Sullivan lifted a fly to Sheppard. Walsh surprised Overall by reaching out and swinging on a wide one for a single over second. Overall was in a tight place when he had three balls on Altizer, but steadied and put over two strikes. Altizer hit the next ball pitched for a single to left center, Walsh pulling up to third.

As Isbell came up the signal was flashed for the squeeze play. Overall pitched to cut the outer edge, Isbell swung on the ball and Walsh dashed for home. It was a hard grounder down the first base foul line.

Divining his opponent's intentions, Chance did not hesitate what to do in the crisis. The Cubs' leader dashed out, fielded the ball in a flash, wheeled and whipped it to the plate. Kling received the sphere a few feet to the left of the home base and tagged Walsh sliding to the plate.

That bit of quick fielding and thinking probably saved the pennant for the Cubs. Had Chance wished to play safe by tagging Isbell, Walsh would have scored the tying run and the great pitcher had already settled down for one of his famous extra inning duels.

Artificial Rubies Are Easily Made

A recent London lawsuit, in which the relation between natural and artificial rubies was incidentally raised, brought to light a number of interesting facts regarding these stones. The so-called "reconstructed" rubies appeared on the Paris market a number of years ago. They were made by melting together fragments of natural rubies. Owing to "cloudiness" they had no great success. Later the "synthetic" stones appeared, made in the same way, except that the fragments were powdered, or instead of actual fragments an oxide of aluminum powder (of which substance the natural ruby is composed) was fused and crystallized. These stones can be made up to 10 carats in size, and are equal in appearance to the natural gems, although costing very much less. They are, in fact just as much rubies as the natural stones, being identical with the latter in luster, hardness and chemical composition. They can be detected by experts, however, by means of the tiny bubbles and faint curved markings in the interior. Pure oxide of aluminum is colorless.

The color of the ruby is due to the presence of a small amount of chromic oxide. Apparently, therefore, the artificial stones can be colored to suit the taste of the purchaser. According to M. G. F. Herbert Smith, manufacturing jewelers have tried for several years to make artificial emeralds, as yet without success. Artificial diamonds have been crystallized out of carbon masses of various sorts, but in such small sizes as to be of no commercial value. It is not at all unlikely, however, that even the latter will be made in the laboratory in sizes suitable for gems. The chemistry of the artificial precious stones is simple enough. The difficulty seems to lie in creating the physical conditions necessary for the proper crystallization of the mixture. —New York Post.

My Worst Blunder

FAMOUS "BONEHEAD" PLAYS ON MAJOR LEAGUE DIAMONDS

Explained by Leading Baseball Players to

HUGH S. FULLERTON

By GEORGE MCBRIDE,

Shortstop Washington Club, Who Is Considered One of the Fastest Thinkers and Most Brilliant Men in the Game.

You never can tell. Sometimes when you think fastest you look worst. In baseball only one thing is certain and that is that it is certain to be uncertain. In almost every game something happens that spoils the best plans, and many is the game I have seen lost and won by something unexpected happening to upset the course of the entire game, both on defense and offense.

I remember a game well that I threw away by making a play that looked to be about the best possible and which I believe was the worst and most surprising mistake I ever made. The crowd didn't blame me, but I never have ceased kicking myself. It was a game we played in Philadelphia last season early. The Athletics were making a great fight to overcome the early lead that Detroit had piled up. If you remember, Detroit started like a crazy team and won 20 out of the first 22 games, putting the rest of the league in desperate positions. The Athletics were fighting fiercely for every game and we, with the Washington team, were equally anxious to win that day, for we won that one game we would break even on the trip and go home in nice position, with a chance to crawl up.

The game was rocking along rapidly, with every one on his toes every minute, and in the fifth inning we were one run to the good. Then came the play that I still think I had figured out correctly, but which went wrong and turned the game upside down.

The Athletics had the bases full with one man out and the pitcher was at bat. While he is one of the greatest pitchers in the country, he never has been noted for excelling Cobb at the bat, and we were not much worried over his hitting. There were two balls called on the batter. I figured it was ten thousand to one—with the bases full and a weak-hitting pitcher up, with our pitcher a little wild—Mack would not let him hit at the next ball no matter what happened. I looked over and saw that the runner on second base was taking a long lead and running up with the ball every time it was pitched, going almost to third base. Not being at all afraid that the batter would even try to hit the ball, I decided that when the next ball was pitched I would go to second at top speed and attempt to catch the base runner off, which I thought would end all danger for that inning. When the ball was pitched I was going for second as fast as I could move. The ball was a fast one, straight over the plate, and to my astonishment the batter took a healthy swing and drove it down right through my position which I had vacated. If I had staid there it would have been an easy double play, but it went as a base hit, drove home two runs, and as we finally were beaten by two runs, my thinking lost the game.

The fact that he ought not to have hit the ball, under the circumstances, is bad enough, but the fact that he doesn't hit in that direction once a month even when he is hitting, makes the thing look like harder luck.

The Effects Of Heat Wave

Philadelphia Reports Fourteen Deaths and List Growing.

Philadelphia, July 9.—Fourteen persons have died from heat, and reports of prostrations were so frequent there is no telling how many victims the present heat wave may claim. Besides deaths due to the heat there have been four suicides and five cases of heart failure possibly due to the terrific humidity. Business is at a standstill. The mercury touched 95. The thermometers in the streets showed the mercury all the way up to 103 in the shade.

Five Deaths In Chicago.

Chicago, July 9.—The hot wave, which received a temporary check by a slight rain, returned when the temperature rose from 71 to 85 degrees, accompanied by excessive humidity. Five deaths and nine prostrations attributed to the heat were reported to the police.

Hospital Provision For Consumptives

Nearly 4,000 additional hospital beds for consumptives in 29 states were provided during the year ending June 1st according to a statement issued today from the records of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. This makes a total of over 30,000 beds, but only about one for every ten indigent tuberculosis patients in this country.

In the last five years, the hospital provision for consumptives has increased from 14,428 in 1907 to over 30,000 in 1912, or over 100 per cent. New York state leads in the number of beds, having 8,350 on June 1st; Massachusetts comes next with 2,800; and Pennsylvania a close third with 2,700. Alabama showed the greatest percentage of increase in the last year by adding 57 new beds to its 42 a year ago. Georgia comes next with 109 beds added to 240 a year ago. New York has the greatest numerical increase, having provided over 1,800 additional beds in the year.

Only four states, Mississippi, Nevada, Utah and Wyoming have no beds whatever in special hospitals or wards for consumptives. Eight years ago, when the National Association was organized, there were 26 states in which no hospital or sanatorium provision for consumptives existed, and the entire number of beds in the United States was only 10,000.

"While these figures would indicate a remarkable growth in anti-tuberculosis activity," says Dr. Livingston Farrand, executive secretary of the National Association, in commenting on this subject, "there are still practically ten indigent consumptives for every one of the 30,000 beds, including those for pay patients. In other words, we have from 250,000 to 300,000 consumptives in this country too poor to provide hospital care for themselves. If tuberculosis is ever going to be stamped out in the United States, more hospital provisions for these force of infection must be provided."

FACE RAW AND BLEEDING.

Results of Scratching, in Eczema—How to Avoid It.

Try This Remedy at Our Risk.

Mothers often find it necessary to wrap cloths around children's hands to prevent them from scratching the face raw when they have eczema or some other itching eruption.

Now that we are ready to supply our new remedy, Saxon Salve, which allays the itching in a few moments, this is easily avoided.

The first application even where the skin is broken out and scratched raw, will bring comfort. And the healing power of Saxon Salve is so great, and the remedy permeates and saturates the skin so thoroughly, that it is only a short time until the eruption has vanished and the skin is left smooth, clear and well.

We guarantee Saxon Salve to satisfy you—money back if it does not. Try it for any recent or chronic skin trouble of children or adults. Blackmer & Tanquary, Druggists, Washington C. H., Ohio.

BRIEF SERVICES HELD HERE.

Monday evening at the twilight hour brief services were held over all that was mortal of Mrs. Susannah VanWinkle at the residence on S. North street.

The rooms were filled with friends and Rev. A. W. West, of the First Baptist church read the scripture and memoir and spoke a few words of consolation.

There was a profusion of flowers, among them beautiful designs from the High school and the East street neighbors.

This afternoon at New Market the family home of the VanWinkles, in the Presbyterian church, the funeral service was held.

The remains were taken over on the morning train by Undertaker C. H. Murray. Accompanying them were Mr. and Mrs. D. H. VanWinkle and son, Ervin, Miss Grace VanWinkle and Mr. Grant Coffman.

DRAW OUT POISON.

Marvelous Antiseptic that Draws Glass, Wood and Needles from the Flesh.

There never was known such a powerful drawing ointment as San Cura. Wherever it has been used it has created astonishment. It drew a needle out of the foot of the daughter of Mrs. James Hitchcock, of Centerville, Pa., after the doctor had used his lance and failed.

Nothing so healing or antiseptic can be purchased today. It possesses so much healing virtue that it is guaranteed by Brown's Drug Store to quickly cure any kind of piles, eczema, tetten, salt rheum, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, all kinds of chronic sores chilblains, and chapped hands, or money back.

It's a mighty handy remedy to have in the house in emergencies such as bruises, burns, cuts or scalds, because it kills the pain instantly. It's a medicine chest in itself—a little family physician that is ever in demand. 25c and 50c a jar at Brown's Drug Store.

BEST SKIN SOAP.

Is San Cura Soap, because of its great antiseptic and healing virtues. Use it regularly, and it will make the skin soft and velvety; will remove pimples and blackheads. It's the real soap for babies' tender skin, which mothers of infants should remember. 25 cents a large cake at Brown's Drug Store.

OLD WORLD BOYS FAIL

Americans Take Lion's Share of Olympic Events.

Stockholm, July 9.—American athletes overwhelmed those of the old world, scoring in every final and finishing the third day of the Olympic track and field contests with a total of 25 points. In every event decided so far, except the javelin throw, the United States has placed one man or more, and in two events has accounted for the whole three places. Finland is second to America with six points, Sweden and Greece each has three, Norway and Germany two and Hungary one. England has not scored a single point in the seven events decided.

It fell to the lot of an American schoolboy, James E. Meredith of Mercersburg academy, to provide the day's sensation by winning the 800-meter run in the world's record time of 1 minute 51.9 seconds.

Another first place fell to the United States in the running high jump, and in this event the result was somewhat in the nature of a surprise, as the man to carry the shield over the 6 feet 3.3 inches that carried the victory was Almer W. Richards of Brigham Young university.

In the standing broad jump the Americans met a formidable opponent in C. Tacilitrak, a Greek, who won the event with a jump of 2 meters 37 centimeters—11 feet 6.3 inches. This was just enough to beat the Adams brothers, who, however, scored second and third for America.

Louis Tewanima, the Carlisle Indian, finished second to the Finnish distance runner, Kolehmainen, in the 10,000 meters run, in a race that was run in the fast time of 31 minutes 20 seconds.

Investigate Atrocities In Rubber Colonies

Washington, July 9.—That the United States is having an investigation made in the Putumayo rubber districts of Peru, as a result of the Casement report on alleged atrocities upon Indians in those regions, was disclosed here. Stewart Fowler, who has had broad experience in the consular service, has gone to Iniquitos, Peru, to make this investigation. Mr. Fowler has just arrived at Iniquitos, and is proceeding to the rubber fields, several hundred miles distant. He is under explicit instructions from the department of state and is expected to make to the department detailed reports of conditions in the rubber districts.

Army Plans Discussed At Length

Officers Meet With Stimson Today To Formulate Program.

Washington, July 9.—A series of conferences looking to the presentation to congress of a comprehensive scheme for the reorganization of the army began today in the office of Secretary of War Stimson. For many months officers of the war college and officers attached to the general staff corps have been at work on a general scheme of reorganization.

Details of the army plan have not yet been made known. It is said the plan drawn up represents all shades of opinion. It is the hope of the army that it can solidly support a definite program of legislation covering all phases of the subject and thus avert further "patchwork legislation" by congress.

Leaves Falling From Shade Trees

A great many shade trees, including the ones on the court house lawn, have been losing their leaves by the hundred during the past few weeks and it has been the general belief that the falling leaves were caused by insects working on the trees, but an authority claims that it is due entirely to an over-abundance of foliage, and that the leaves are cast off by nature because they are too thick. Continuing on his explanation the man says: "With the coming of hot weather nature has tried to throw off part of the over abundance. The insects, lice or aphids, have not caused this condition, but are present because of the condition of the weather and the plants. They have multiplied very rapidly, because of these conditions and the fact that the severe winter killed the larva of the ladybird, and others which feed on the aphids. The aphids will do great harm to smaller shrubs and plants, but not materially to large trees. The remedy is a spray composed of poison; such as the limespur, the preparations made from nicotine, the alkaloids, solutions which contain lye and coal oil.

Care must be taken to prevent injury to the tree by making the solutions too strong. Sometimes falling leaves in the early summer are the result of the cutting off of roots of trees, or lack of moisture, or gas fumes coming in contact with them.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. ## The Effects Of Heat Wave

Philadelphia Reports Fourteen Deaths and List Growing.

Philadelphia, July 9.—Fourteen persons have died from heat, and reports of prostrations were so frequent there is no telling how many victims the present heat wave may claim. Besides deaths due to the heat there have been four suicides and five cases of heart failure possibly due to the terrific humidity. Business is at a standstill. The mercury touched 96. The thermometers in the streets showed the mercury all the way up to 103 in the shade.

Five Deaths in Chicago.

Chicago, July 9.—The hot wave, which received a temporary check by a slight rain, returned when the temperature rose from 71 to 85 degrees, accompanied by excessive humidity. Five deaths and nine prostrations attributed to the heat were reported to the police.

Three Dead at Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, July 9.—Three dead and a score prostrated is the record of the hottest day of the summer in Pittsburgh.

Favorable to Bullitt.

Washington, July 9.—A favorable report on the nomination of William Marshall Bullitt of Louisville, Ky., to be solicitor general of the United States, succeeding Frederick W. Lehman, resigned, was ordered by the senate judiciary committee.

Hospital Provision For Consumptives

Nearly 4,000 additional hospital beds for consumptives in 29 states were provided during the year ending June 1st according to a statement issued today from the records of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. This makes a total of over 30,000 beds, but only about one for every ten indigent tuberculosis patients in this country.

In the last five years, the hospital provision for consumptives has increased from 14,428 in 1907 to over 30,000 in 1912, or over 100 per cent. New York state leads in the number of beds, having 8,350 on June 1st; Massachusetts comes next with 2,800; and Pennsylvania a close third with 2,700. Alabama showed the greatest percentage of increase in the last year by adding 57 new beds to its 42 a year ago. Georgia comes next with 109 beds added to 240 a year ago. New York has the greatest numerical increase, having provided over 1,800 additional beds in the year.

Only four states, Mississippi, Nevada, Utah and Wyoming have no beds whatever in special hospitals or wards for consumptives. Eight years ago, when the National Association was organized, there were 26 states in which no hospital or sanatorium provision for consumptives existed, and the entire number of beds in the United States was only 10,000.

"While these figures would indicate a remarkable growth in anti-tuberculosis activity," says Dr. Livingston Farrand, executive secretary of the National Association, in commenting on this subject, "there are still practically ten indigent consumptives for every one of the 30,000 beds, including those for pay patients. In other words, we have from 250,000 to 300,000 consumptives in this country too poor to provide hospital care for themselves. If tuberculosis is ever going to be stamped out in the United States, more hospital provisions for these force of infection must be provided."

FACE RAW AND BLEEDING.

Results of Scratching, in Eczema—How to Avoid It.

Try This Remedy at Our Risk.

Mothers often find it necessary to wrap cloths around children's hands to prevent them from scratching the face raw when they have eczema or some other itching eruption.

Now that we are ready to supply our new remedy, Saxon Salve, which allays the itching in a few moments, this is easily avoided.

The first application even where the skin is broken out and scratched raw, will bring comfort. And the healing power of Saxon Salve is so great, and the remedy permeates and saturates the skin so thoroughly, that it is only a short time until the eruption has vanished and the skin is left smooth, clear and well.

We guarantee Saxon Salve to satisfy you—money back if it does not. Try it for any recent or chronic skin trouble of children or adults. Blackmer & Tanquary, Druggists, Washington C. H., Ohio.

Heavy Rains In North and South

While this city escaped with a very light shower Monday afternoon, parts of northern and southern Fayette were soaked by a heavy rain about four o'clock.

In the Buena Vista neighborhood a small cloud quickly developed into a violent electrical storm, and one of the hardest rains of the season fell driving the farmers from the fields for several days.

ASSUMES CHARGE OF EPISCOPALIAN MISSION.

Rev. Phares, of Dayton, has been appointed by the Bishop to take charge of the Episcopalian mission of this city and also of the one at Wilmington. In all probability Rev. Phares will make his home in this city.

BRIEF SERVICES HELD HERE.

Monday evening at the twilight hour brief services were held over all that was mortal of Mrs. Susannah VanWinkle at the residence on S. North street.

The rooms were filled with friends and Rev. A. W. West, of the First Baptist church read the scripture and memoir and spoke a few words of consolation.

There was a profusion of flowers, among them beautiful designs from the High school and the East street neighbors.

This afternoon at New Market the family home of the VanWinkles, in the Presbyterian church, the funeral service was held.

The remains were taken over on the morning train by Undertaker C. H. Murray. Accompanying them were Mr. and Mrs. D. H. VanWinkle and son, Ervin, Miss Grace VanWinkle and Mr. Grant Coffman.

DRAW OUT POISON.

Marvelous Antiseptic that Draws Glass, Wood and Needles from the Flesh.

There never was known such a powerful drawing ointment as San Cura. Wherever it has been used it has created astonishment. It drew a needle out of the foot of the daughter of Mrs. James Hitchcock, of Centerville, Pa., after the doctor had used his lance and failed.

Nothing so healing or antiseptic can be purchased today. It possesses so much healing virtue that it is guaranteed by Brown's Drug Store to quickly cure any kind of piles, eczema, tetten, salt rheum, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, all kinds of chronic sores, chilblains, and chapped hands, or money back.

It's a mighty handy remedy to have in the house in emergencies such as bruises, burns, cuts or scalds, because it kills the pain instantly. It's a medicine chest in itself—a little family physician that is ever in demand. 25c and 50c a jar at Brown's Drug Store.

BEST SKIN SOAP.

Is San Cura Soap, because of its great antiseptic and healing virtues. Use it regularly, and it will make the skin soft and velvety; will remove pimples and blackheads. It's the real soap for babies' tender skin, which mothers of infants should remember. 25 cents a large cake at Brown's Drug Store.

Mail orders for San Cura Ointment and Soap filled by Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa.

"With the coming of hot weather nature has tried to throw off part of the over abundance. The insects, lice or aphids, have not caused this condition, but are present because of the condition of the weather and the plants. They have multiplied very rapidly, because of these conditions and the fact that the severe winter killed the larva of the ladybird, and others which feed on the aphids.

The aphids will do great harm to smaller shrubs and plants, but not materially to large trees. The remedy is a spray composed of poison; such as the limespur, the preparations made from nicotine, the alkaloids, solutions which contain lime and coal oil.

Care must be taken to prevent injury to the tree by making the solutions too strong. Sometimes falling leaves in the early summer are the result of the cutting off of roots of trees, or lack of moisture, or gas fumes coming in contact with them.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting him in doing his work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by all Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.
